Revenge of the Desi Girl by Vikram Bhatt is a book based on Devdutt Pattanaik, a social scientist and a professor of Hinduism at the University of Delhi. The book talks about the history of Hindu Gods and goddesses in relation to their origins, which constitute a socio-political analysis. In the epilogue, Pattanaik provides his take on whether devotion towards Devdutt is justified. He argues that because Hindu mythology has been politicised from time immemorial for political ends, but today it also helps in creating a sense of community amongst Hindus. In 2015, Devdutt Pattanaik was awarded the Padma Shri, India's fourth highest civilian honour by President Pranab Mukherjee.

Children of Devdutt Pattanaik

Devdutt Pattanaik lives in Delhi. He has a son and a daughter. His son, Siddharth Bhattacharya is now a university professor. His daughter married Rajneesh Nanda on 5 November 2013 in Alwar, Rajasthan.

Devdutt Pattanaik has conducted several short research projects for the Centre for Study of Social Exclusion and Inclusive Policy (CSEIP) at Jawaharlal Nehru University. He is also the Founder Fellow of The Hindu Fellowship (HF), an organization started in July 2010 by Devdutt Pattnaik.
